Smith on Permanency. ILEXAS Col. THOM. BENTON, we believe that referred to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the DRED SCOTT case as baying a stump speech in its belly," We have been terminded of this by reading Col. BES SMITH's address of welcome delivered to (or at) the State officers the other day, on behalf of the reception committee, on board, the Mountain Boy. The old gentleman seems to have forgotten for a time what he was about. He didn't seem quite easy in his mind about the permanency of the capital at Charleston, and after an opening paragraph of half a dozen lines, he proceeded to argue that question as

The framers of the Constitution of our State, regarded it inexpedient at that time to make a permanent location of the State Capital, but provided by that instrument, "that the seat of Government should remain at Whiceling, until a permanent seat of Government was established by law." The Legislature has executed the power confided to it under the State Constitution. confided to it under the State Constitution, by the enactment of a law declaring "that the permanent seat of Government shall be established at Churleston in the county of "Kanawita," The same law provided that the "Governor should remove the archives, and 'other property of the State to that place by the 1st day of April, 1870, at which time the law takes effect.

Under the Constitution and the law, then, at least from and after the date last stated, our State has a Capital permanent.

stated, our State has a Capital permaner engaged in the execution of the duty sed on you by the law, of transfer-the government from its temporary imposed on you by the law, or transporting the government from its temporary location at Wheeling, to its permanent location at Charleston.

We think this a 'suitable occasion to congratulate you and the State at large, that a final settlement of this vexed question has been effected, and thereby removed from the halls of legislation, where it has occupied so large a space in the legislative mind, since the creation of our State. A subject which has delayed and hindered legislation, and greatly added in od from the halls of legislation, where it has occupied so large a space in the legislative mind, since the creation of our State. A subject which has delayed an indered legislation, and greatly sided in the passage of improper and mischlevous laws. Whilst I do not have the temerity to aver that this subject has in any particular treen the cause of corruption in our Legislature, yet it is of a nature involving material interests, eminently calculated to engender fraud and corruption, dangerous to the probity and morals of the law-making power of the State. We regard it as fortunate, that this cause of bitter coatestion among the various sections of the State has been removed.

It was very prudent on the part of Col. System and to make any rash averments in

It was very prudent on the part of Col. SMPTH not to make any rash averments in regard to the use of equivocal influences in the Legislature to effect this settlement which is so very "final;" but his anxiety to sinsist thatsit is final betrays a secret consciousness that he fears it is not. The Colonel has a very convenient theory that because the Constitution provides the sent of government should remain at Wheeling til a permanent seat of government be established by law," therefore "permaforever immovi the contrary, it being left to the Legislature to establish the permanent sent of government, that body has the full and sole power to judge when it is anent," and, therefore, "permanent" can only mean at the pleasure of the Legislature. It is impossible for the Legislature to do an act which it cannot repeal No Legislature can tie its own hands. The power to do includes the power to undo. Nor can one Legislature bind its successo except by a contract under which vested rights accrue. But there is no contract and no vested right in this case. If the perma nent seat of Government were named in the Constitution, it could be changed only by an amendment to that instrument; but being left subject to regulation by law, it exists entirely subject to the pleasure of the law-making power, which though composed of successive legislatures, is a

If the Charleston folks were less confident as to the matter of permanency, they would hardly be in such haste to skin the State officers who have gone there (pecuairly not literally) in the manner indicated by a paragraph in the Register a few mornings since—proposing to charge the Governor within two hundred dollars of his whole salary for a house, and other officers $1,000 a year for house which be done in the confidence of the confidenc If the Charleston folks were less confiofficers $1,000 a year for houses which before rented for $150 to $200. Charleston people could not adopt a better can ticket and saved some good men from way to raise the question of permanency at the very first session of the Legislatur

THE RALLEDAD.—The work of canvassing for subscription to the capital stock of the Belmont and Toledo Rallerand has not been pressed very vigorously for the just few weeks, but we understand the work will now be prosecuted with increased vigor. We urge our people to take floid of the matter in carnets and press it to a successful issue. If this Road is not built now it will probably never be built on the route proposed under the present charter, and a large scope of very rich country will be left without any Rallroad connection.

Dreadful Accident.—On Saturday atternoon two men named Samuel Haiges and John Bethel came to Hendrysburg and purclassed a lug of whisky. On their way itome they met John Hainesi whe was plowing in a field by the roadsite Here the three imbibled freely of the whisk results a short time become thoroughly ky and in a short time became thoroughly intoxicated. Samuel Haines and Bethe then got in the wagon again and drove towards their homes. On the way they lost all control of themselves and were in-

EXCITING SCENE.—The loungers about the depot onjoyed, a sensation one evening last week. A divorced wife, to whom was awarded the care of her child—a boy four or five years old—being unable to support it, had allowed her husband to have charge of it for some time past. At the time indicated, however, feeling more strong in her financial afters, she had come here to obtain the chird. She had reach it the depot on her return without merr prion, but was followed by the explaint who tried to prequent the kidnapping of the child. Ruite a wordy war ensued, the man seeming determined to have the boy, and the woman resolved that she would take him with her. A she the train approached the man caught the child and researched in taking it from the mother. take him with her. As the the the train ap-proached the man caught the child and succeeded in taking it from the mother, but she speedily rallied and dealt him sev-eral severe blows, which forced him to partly relinquish his hold. Then she seized the legs of the child, while the husb had the arms and read, and for some t they held the little creature between them, while its cries of pain could be distinctly heard above all the tumult. Finally the mother conquered, and got on the train, flinging back bitter and profane epithets upon the discomfited father.

The Democracy Attempt to Steal Vote From a Blind "Nigger," and How They Did'nt

Monday was election day with us, and I see in noticing the result you make a slight mistake in saying "Politics was entirely ignored." This is a small matter, but as the occasion was one of some fun to all, except the frogs, I make the correction and give you an incident or two. to all, except the frogs, I make the correc-tion, and give you an incident or two. Last election we were sold to the enemy the Democracy electing about everything in the corporation and township, and had about concluded that everything in the abolic concluder that covering a control of two preclines belonged to them except the "niggers," one of whom, and he stone blind, they attempted to buy, but failed for lack of spirit, genuine true Democratic grit—whisky. Not that I would intimate frit-whisky. Not that I would intimate hat the negro partook so much of the naure of a genuine Democrat that whisky was the price of his vote, but the Democratic first the transfer of the price of his vote. cratic family-jug was so nearly orbansted by the time it reached the chattel that, as a good Democrat expressed it, there was just enough to confect but not enough to context. Well, the Johnnies met under the guise of a "clizens" meeting" to nomi-nate candidates and year gracially connate candidates, and very graciously con-descended to allow two m lungs stouble cans a place on their ticket, two of whom, J. C. Tallman and A. Brannon, declined the doubtful honor, when the others were expunged, and the cops concluded salvation. They soon captured "Blind Charley." Poor Charley couldn't see when he was going and his captors refused to tell him; and after giving him, as they allege, a half pint of whisky to vote their ticket, they started to the polls with their "beauty and booty;" but,

Aft gang a giey," for lo 1 no sooner had they emerged from their synagogue than a stalwart negro, who had been "waiting and watching," selzed Charley, and swore the Democrats should not impose on his blind friend, in foreing him to vote their ticket. The faithful appealed to Charley to stand by the contract, and said if he did not they would nevermore give him to drink of their elixir. The poor blind negro, summoning all the energies, Democratic whistheir elixir. The poor blind negro, sunmoning all the energies, Democratic whiskey had not stifled, turned to his Democratic benefictors and said—"Tae a hopable nigger, if I does drink Democratic whiskey sometimes, and as fob—toh woth ad Democrat ticket—why—why gemmen —de fao am—'I can't see it." It was annusing to see Johnnies countenance, as Charley's ballot dropped in the box, as they turned away discomfited, singing in subdued accents as they went—

"Mary had allthe lamb,

"Mary had a little lamb,

He floore was schile as snow.

Shades of Wheatland and Jeff Davis' noops, spirits of Buchanan and Calhoun, what a sight! Monsters have been heard of who would steal acorns from a blind og, but for a Democrat to be seen stealing vote from a blind nigger, is beyond com-rehension.

But the negroes all voted the Republidefeat, thanks to them.
